In this volume expert researchers detail in silico methods widely used to study peptides. These include methods and techniques covering the database, molecular docking, dynamics simulation, data mining, de novo design and structure modeling of peptides and protein fragments. Chapters focus on integration and application of technologies to analyze, model, identify, predict, and design a wide variety of bioactive peptides, peptide analogues and peptide drugs, as well as peptide-based biomaterials. Written in the highly successful Methods in Molecular Biology series format, chapters include introductions to their respective topics, lists of the necessary materials and reagents, step-by-step, readily reproducible laboratory protocols, and key tips on troubleshooting and avoiding known pitfalls. Authoritative and practical, Computational Peptidology seeks to aid scientists in the further study into this newly rising subfield.

The volume assesses performative structures within a variety of medieval forms of textuality, from vernacular literature to records of parliamentary proceedings, from prayer books to musical composition. Three issues are central to the volume: the role of ritual speech acts; the way in which authorship can be seen as created within medieval texts rather than as a given category; finally, phenomena of voice, created and situated between citation and repetition, especially in forms which appropriate and transform literary tradition. The volume encompasses articles by historians and musicologists as well as literary scholars. It spans European literature from the West (French, German, Italian) to the East (Church Slavonic), vernacular and Latin; it contrasts modes of liturgical meditation in the Western and Eastern Church with secular plays and songs, and it brings together studies on the character of 'voice' in major medieval authors such as Dante with examples of Dante-reception in the early twentieth century.

An objective of IMF-supported programs is to help countries improve their access to international capital markets. In this paper, we examine the issue whether IMF-supported programs influence the ability of developing country issuers to tap international bond markets and whether they improve spreads paid on the bonds issued. We find that IMF-supported programs do not provide a uniformly favorable signaling effect-that is, the mere existence of a program supported by the IMF does not act as a strong "seal of good housekeeping." Instead, the evidence is most consistent with a positive effect of IMF-supported programs when they are viewed as likely to lead to policy reform and when undertaken before economic fundamentals have deteriorated significantly. The size of the IMF-supported program matters, but the credibility of a joint commitment by the country and the IMF appears to be critical.

Esta nova edição, totalmente reformulada, tem como principal missão estruturar o conhecimento de sistemas produtivos referentes às condições para a fabricação de produtos em condições estáveis. Os principais temas abordados são: aplicações de tolerâncias e acabamento superficial; sistema de ajuste da ABNT; tolerâncias geométricas; e análise de dimensões. Além disso, o livro conta com uma lista essencial de referências e exercícios para aplicação dos temas aprendidos. O material apresentado faz parte de um arcabouço de conhecimentos que inclui roteiros e processos de fabricação, tolerâncias operacionais e encadeamento de operações. Em conjunto, esses tópicos compõem conceitos de engenharia aplicada à fabricação de bens, área também conhecida como engenharia de fabricação, que busca atender princípios fundamentais de intercambiabilidade e qualidade necessários para uma organização com características de competitividade. Esses conhecimentos podem ser desdobrados em formatos que permitem sua difusão em cursos de engenharia mecânica, especificamente nas disciplinas Tecnologia Mecânica, Projeto de Produtos e Metrologia, em treinamentos de funcionários em empresas ou na utilização de normas técnicas.
