Raise Boring Machine Terratec | www.uppercasing.com Tunnel boring machine (TBM) manufacturer Terratec has celebrated the completion of a 300m deep ventilation shaft at the Buriticá mine development project, in Colombia. Peruvian mining contractor Incimmet deployed a custom-built TR2000 raise boring machine (RBM) to excavate the 4.1m diameter shaft. Ground conditions at the Buriticá largely consist of andesite-porphry, diorites and monzodiorites with intrusive hydrothermal gaps within the volcanic and sedimentary sequences. Terratec raise borer completes first shaft at Buriticá ... Raise boring is the most commonly used method for the production of long vertical shafts in underground mines, especially deep, hard rock mines. The technique is used to create ventilation shafts, access shafts, escape ways, ore passes, fill passes etc. It is also applied for mine production drilling, particularly for slot-raise drilling.
